Edible Baja Arizona
Editorial Internship 2015

Edible Baja Arizona, a bi-monthly magazine that celebrates the foodways of Tucson and the borderlands, is seeking a communications intern for the spring, summer, or fall semesters. The internship is unpaid and offered for 3 units of academic credit, or approximately 9 hours of work a week.

The intern’s duties will include, but are not limited to: compiling food-related events and happenings into an online calendar; creating posts for social media sites; contributing blog posts; and, as necessary, assisting the Edible Baja Arizona staff in administrative tasks. Depending on interest and previous skill, there is also the opportunity to contribute to content to the print magazine, as well as to help launch the Edible Baja Arizona e-newsletter.

The job will include interacting with many community organizations, which will require email correspondence as well as phone and in-person interviews, so some reporting experience is a plus. Additionally, familiarity with Wordpress and Adobe software is useful.

The intern will work in the Edible Baja Arizona office, located at 307 S. Convent Ave.

Published every other month, Edible Baja Arizona features an array of quality stories and photographs that celebrate the joys of eating locally, explore the rich food heritages of Baja Arizona, and advocate for the importance of relocalizing our foodshed. Edible Baja Arizona is a member of Edible Communities, a growing, James Beard award-winning, international series of community-based food publications whose mission is to transform the way communities shop for, cook, eat, and relate to the food that is grown and produced in their area.

If interested, please send a resume and 2-3 writing samples to Megan Kimble, managing editor, at megan@ediblebajaarizona.com.
